Come for opening prayers for Christian unity and meet mystic 'Julian of Norwich' in a one-woman show by J. Janda

After years of touring the United States, a dramatic monologue that celebrates the life and teachings of 14th-Century mystic Julian of Norwich will be featured in New Mexico.

"Julian" written by J Janda, is performed by actress and writer Rev. Linda Loving. It highlights the life, ideas, and writings of the first woman to write a book in Middle English. Julian's spiritual counseling and writings over the course of her life have found their way into many aspects of history, literature, and religion. A complex historical figure, her book Revelations of Divine Love offers insight into her life, values, and why her legacy has remained for centuries.

In addition to taking this performance around the country, Loving wears many hats as an ordained Presbyterian minister, actress, writer, and consultant.

ATTENDANCE IS FREE. Doors will open at 6:30pm. A free-will offering will be received to benefit the New Mexico Conference of Churches. This program is recommended for ages Junior High and up. Seating is limited and unassigned.

REGISTRATION. Online Registration is encouraged at NMChurches.org. In the event of a weather closing, those who register will be notified via email by noon Jan. 18th. Snow date is 3pm, Sunday, Jan. 20.

THIS EVENT IS IN CELEBRATION! The New Mexico Conference of Churches received a generous anonymous donation to underwrite this event to promote the ecumenical Week of Prayer for Christian Unity and in celebration of the 60th Anniversary of the founding of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Albuquerque. We are most grateful!
